In 2003, John Halligan lost his 13-year-old son, Ryan, to suicide after months of bullying and cyberbullying. He now shares Ryan's story to help families strengthen communication, recognize concerns and seek help.

Parents and caregivers will learn about:

- How bullying, cyberbullying and suicide prevention intersect
- Current context about suicidal ideation among teens
- Practical ways to guide your child's online activity
- Building open communication about difficult topics
- How bystanders can become upstanders and seek help
- Steps families can take to support safety and connection

2,500+ schools | More than 1 million students reached | 20+ years of advocacy

Join us for an important conversation about safety, connection and support.
